The old guards include Palmina Brunelli, Patricia Conley, Georgia Crystal, Floris Gregory, Jerry Potts, Delores Rizo and Sibyl Ann Wallace. They have one associate member, Lewis Hughes. The first meeting of the year will be held Friday, September 26. The initiation will be Thursday, October 2.

Grid Lineup

The probable starting lineup for Saturday's game will be, fullback, Bob Voorhies; quarterback, Bill Hutchinson; halfbacks, Russell Land and Delbert "Dutch" Duncan, center, Ernest "Doc" Scheiber, guards, Brunello and Mairs; tackles, Ken Collins and Lawrence Sergeant, ends, Jack Emmerson and Donald Young.

We want you all out on the field when the team starts playing. We hope it's in the first quarter, but one can never tell.

Student Cards

The student body card sale started Wednesday and ends Friday, so if you hear loud noises the latter part of this week it's only a close ticket race being fought out.

Girls' League

The Girls League had its first meeting on Thursday, Sept. 11th. They sure started off with the best start possible. Here's wishing them a great big successful year, with all the good luck possible.

Boys' Senate

As usual, the boys' senate is not yet under way, but President Ray Lumley hopes to call the first meeting to order by June, if it is O. K. with all the members.

Notes

If the Senior Dramatics Class doesn't stop pulling "corny jokes," Mr. Flynn threatens he will quit teaching. He's probably jealous of us!

From here to authentic sources, we hear that a certain group of men teachers are forming a Fathers Club. We can't guess who they'd be. Can you?

This week all who are interested may see the best tennis game in years. Bob and Ed Springer, "the best doubles team in the world," have challenged Dan Walters and Jerry Davis, "a couple of rank amateurs." So come one, come all and see the slaughter.

Student body secretary Lois Collins is still looking for the "two little men who were always there." Wonder if she'll find them?

Army week is over and the school work improved 100 per cent apparently over the weekend. Too bad, girls, but they'll be back again. You hope!

There will be well organized classes for all age groups and the school has set a new attendance goal which will be expected Sunday. Mrs. Don Hook is chairman of the Sunday school board.

Farm Leader Is Church Speaker

"Importance Of Country Church In National Life" Is Theme For Sunday

An effort has been made by the Federated Church to invite the farming people of the county, especially, to attend the Sunday morning service at the church with George H. Wilson, of Clarksburg, widely known agricultural leader in the state, will speak on "The Importance of the Country Church in Our National Life."

The day has been designated as "Rural Life Sunday" and plans for Mr. Wilson's visit have been arranged by a special committee including George H. Volz, Max Bollman and Farm Advisor Ivan W. Lilley.

In directing attention to Mr. Wilson's visit, Mr. Volz points out that leaders are inclining more and more to the opinion that no institution has a more important influence in the lives of our rural people than the country church.

Teacher Painfully Cuts Hand In Home Mishap

Mrs. Kathleen Coleman, teacher in the Cold Springs school, experienced a painful accident recently which explains the bandage on one hand.

In her kitchen, Mrs. Coleman was intending to lift a butcher knife from a wall rack when the implement slipped from her hand and she made a quick grab for it to catch it before it fell to the floor.

She caught it across the blade with the result that the hand was painfully cut and tendons on two fingers were severed.

Mr. King is thoroughly experienced in radio repair.

MINE SUPPLIES GET PRIORITY

Operating Properties Must Be Certified By Governor, Agent Explains

ANGELS CAMP. (P)—Fears of mine operators that defense priorities might curtail their activities were set at rest here Tuesday night by Gilbert H. Nneiss, assistant district manager of the Office of Production Management, San Francisco, who said essential materials for mining had been given the highest rating—A-1-A.

Kneiss outlined to the 150 operators means of obtaining rationed materials. He said all California mines must be certified by Gov. Culbert Olson, and that Olson had appointed Kenneth I. Fulton, director of natural resources, to handle priorities for the state.

Gov. E. P. Carville of Nevada has named Matt Murphy, Nevada State mine inspector, to a similar post in that state, he said.

Charles M. Merrill, supervising engineer of the U. S. bureau of mines, said his organization had surveyed the state's deposits of strategic minerals which would be worked when and if imports were cut off. Walter W. Bradley, chief of the state division of mines, outlined the search for these materials.

State Senator Jesse Mayo of Angels Camp and Assemblyman Allen Thurman of Colfax discussed the legislature's work as it pertained to the mining industry.

WPA MAY HELP TO PROVIDE NEW JOBS

Pressure To Increase Funds May Result From Action To Re-Employ Army Trainees

By JOHN W. DUNLAP
United Press Staff Correspondent

SACRAMENTO. (P)—Two unrelated events have a bearing on the unemployment relief problem. One is the attempt to find a new employment answer on the part of the newly-formed state and county coordinating committee on re-employment. The other is the intention of State Senator John Phillips of the Riverside district to run for Congress.

As a matter of fact, Senator Phillips is one of the reasons why the governor formed the committee to see what could be done about hiring the state's jobless on useful work. It was Phillips who headed the fight in the legislature to abolish the state relief administration. He was a leader in the "economy bloc" movement which hamstringing the governor's program and brought the showdown on relief.

And Phillips was chairman of a committee which spent several years digging into the relief picture. The evidence he uncovered concerning extravagance and mismanagement was a vital factor in pounding down the coffin lid of the SRA.

Phillips wants to represent the new 22nd congressional district of Riverside, Orange and Imperial counties, formed in the last re-apportionment bill. There is no incumbent and the race is wide open, with the possibility that Orange county might contribute Senator Thomas Kuchel, Assemblyman Sam Collins and Published Lotus Louden to the Republican cause. Supervisor N. E. West has a lone field so far in the Democratic race, and the contests should be exciting.

This is once when Governor Olson may give his blessing to Phillips, in hopes he gets elected and out of the legislature.

The employment committee has the primary concern of creating jobs in larger counties without a tax rate raise. Pressure will be brought to expand the WPA appropriation for this area to take care of an additional 10,000 cases.

The WPA is now providing work for about 43,000 cases, including some with the social welfare board as sponsor. If the federal government raised the ante for California, the sponsorship of projects would have to be financed by counties and cities, aided somewhat by the state park and public works agencies.

P. T. A. Meets October 2

Placerville Association Will Hear Talk By Rev. Edwin Castledine

The Placerville Parent-Teacher Association will begin its meetings for the year on Thursday, October 2, at the grammar school at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The meeting is open to all who are interested and a special invitation to attend is extended to the parents who have not previously experienced P. T. A. membership.

The executive board will meet half an hour earlier at the office of the principal and the general membership meeting will have Rev. Edwin J. Castledine as a guest speaker. His topic is "Good Homes." Mrs. Irene Scali and Mrs. Frank Romberg are co-chairmen on arrangements and refreshments will be served during the social hour by a committee of the mothers of the eighth grade pupils.

BURGLARY SUSPECTS FACE ARRAIGNMENT IN SUPERIOR COURT

George A. Hall is charged with entering cabins in Lake Valley on the Luther Pass highway.

GARDEN SECTION TO MEET IN HOMES OF ITS MEMBERS

Shakespeare Club Group Votes New Plan At Initial Meeting For Year, Held On Tuesday At Home Of Co-Chairman, Mrs. R. G. Risser

The Garden Section of the Shakespeare Club, at its first regular meeting of the Fall season on Tuesday, established the policy of holding its meetings throughout the year at the homes of its members.

The first meeting was held at the home of Mrs. R. G. Risser, who, with Mrs. Frank Toombs, is co-chairman of the section for the year.

In voting to meet at the homes of members, the members of the section also agreed that each hostess for the section in her turn will arrange a decorative table using flowers and shrubs of the season.

The section meets on the fourth

Tuesday afternoon of each month and the October meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Harry Reaside, at Lotus, on Tuesday, October 28th, unless plans are changed meanwhile.

In the first meeting of the section for the year, Mrs. Risser presented an interesting and attractively decorated table using flowers of the season in a patriotic theme.

In addition to discussions on gardening, the section heard a paper by Mrs. Risser relative to what and where to plant at this time of the year.

Mrs. Reaside has announced plans to use the Halloween theme in her decorative table.

DODGERS HOLD EDGE IN NATIONAL LEAGUE PENNANT CHASE

NEW YORK. (P)—Pennant-winning possibilities were all on the Brooklyn Dodgers' side today in their battle with the St. Louis Cardinals for the National League pennant.

Both have four games to play. The Cardinals play in Pittsburgh today and tomorrow, have an open date Friday and move to Chicago for windup games on Saturday and Sunday.

The Dodgers play in Boston today and tomorrow, are idle Friday and return to Ebbetts Field for final games with Philadelphia Saturday and Sunday.

If Brooklyn wins three of their remaining games, the Cards could not win the pennant even if they swept their four remaining contests.

HURRICANE ON GULF COAST LEAVES FOUR DEAD AND HIGH PROPERTY LOSS

HOUSTON, Tex. (P)—Coastal fishing towns were inundated and Houston, center of Texas' most populous metropolitan district, was buffeted by winds and rain today as a tropical hurricane of 110-miles an hour intensity swept inland from the Gulf of Mexico.

The hurricane was spending its force as it moved northward but it left behind at least four dead and damage to property and rice and cotton crops estimated in the millions of dollars.

Argentine Reports Plot "Cropped In The Bud"

BUENOS AIRES. (P)—Acting President Ramon S. Castillo announced today that a subversive military movement, said by the press to have been inspired by Nazi sympathizers, has been "cropped in the bud."

BULGARIA NEAR WAR AS ALLY OF BERLIN

Inter-Allied Conference Approves 8-Point Program Of Churchill, Roosevelt

ANKARA, Turkey. (P)—Bulgaria's entry into the Axis war against Russia was regarded as inevitable in diplomatic circles today and reliable informants said roads leading north toward the Danube river were choked with Bulgarian troops.

The Bulgarian and German general staffs were said to be in consultation. Bulgarian forces along the Turkish frontier have noticeably diminished in the last few days.

There was little doubt among diplomats that Bulgaria and Russia would be fighting soon; the only disagreement was as to which would declare war first.

By UNITED PRESS

Ten Allied governments—most of them in exile—united behind the peace aims of the United States and Great Britain today and pledged increased aid to the Red army's struggle against the Axis.

The meeting of the first inter-allied conference of the war emphasized the necessity of speeding American aid to the Soviet Union at a time when the Russian armed forces were demonstrating remarkable ability to absorb severe defeats on the Ukraine front and then strike back at the Nazis.

The Ukraine army of Marshal Semyon Budenny, battered by a powerful Nazi drive toward the main Russian industries of the south, was reported by London to be making a strong new stand in defense of the vital Donets basin, with Kharkov as the key city in a new and big-scale battle.

Inquest Called In L. A. Murder

Husband Of Victim And Ernest G. Booth Are Expected To Testify

LOS ANGELES. (P)—A coroner's jury was convened today to investigate the death of wealthy Mrs. Florence Stricker, who was clubbed to death in her home 10 days ago.

Dr. George Stricker, a druggist practitioner, who has been confined to a sanitarium since the killing, was expected to testify to finding his wife's battered body in a closet of the house when he came home for dinner.

Stricker, who was named beneficiary of half of Mrs. Stricker's $1,000,000 estate, collapsed while describing the scene to police. He has been under observation since, and psychiatrists said it was not wise to subject him to questioning earlier.

Another important witness is Ernest G. Booth, film scenario writer who was held four days on suspicion of murder in connection with Mrs. Stricker's death. He obtained his freedom on a writ of habeas corpus, but was re-arrested on a charge of violating the state gun law.

Booth, who was paroled from prison, had two guns in his home, police said, and it is unlawful for ex-convicts to possess firearms.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

By STANLEY

Love in Disguise

by MARY KEAS

Peggy O'Toole, salesgirl in the bargain basement of Meredith's Department Store in New York, is on her way home one day when a passing taxi splashes mud on her. When the young driver stops to apologize, she indignantly squelches him. That evening, at night school, she is surprised to discover him in her French class, and learns that his name is Jimmie Butler. She again squelches him but, a few evenings later, goes to the movies with him. He kisses her when he takes her home. Meanwhile, she has become acquainted with the store owner's little granddaughter, Janice Meredith, who wandered down into the bargain basement one day. Janice has taken a great fancy to her and wants her for a governess. As the child has a weak heart, her grandfather is to grant her every wish. Hence, he sends for Peggy and offers her the position, but Peggy, resenting his patronizing attitude, rejects his offer.

CHAPTER VII

"MISS O'TOOLE!" It was Miss Healy summoning Peggy again.

Peggy turned. "Oh, all right," she said resignedly.

She called to Anna to take her counter over.

"Gee!" Anna said. "The old man sends for you most every day!"

"This is the third time," Peggy remarked, as she departed.

Upstairs, she found a chic young woman with Mr. Meredith in his office.

"Here she is, Beth," the old man said, as Peggy entered. "Miss O'Toole — my daughter-in-law Mrs. Peter Meredith, Jr. — Janice's mother."

Both Merediths greeted Peggy in a low, restrained voice that matched her cool air of breeding.

"Well, young lady," Mr. Meredith barked, "have you been thinking it over? And have you decided to accept my offer?"

Peggy shook her head. "No, sir."

He groaned. "Young lady, every night my granddaughter greets me at the door, demanding to know if you are coming — and every night I must tell her that you refuse, without knowing why you do! You've got me stumped!"

Peggy shrugged. "This idea of your granddaughter's of wanting me is a whim that will soon pass. She'll get tired of having me around, and then I'll be out of a job completely."

"IS THAT your only objection? If it is, please let me assure you that, the day Janice grows tired of your services, you will be welcomed back to your old place here in the store. Is that the only reason you have been holding off?"

"Not my only reason," Peggy admitted. "Just one of them."

Miss O'Toole? Mrs. Meredith put in. "Perhaps we can reassure you about them, also."

Peggy hesitated. "You probably don't realize it," she said slowly, "but you are really asking a lot of me. Here in the store, I have to work hard, but my day begins at nine and ends at six. Beyond those hours, my time is my own. But in your household, as governess to Janice, I would practically never be free. I would be at her beck and call all hours."

"Oh, no!" Mrs. Meredith protested. "Your hours could be as regular as they are now. If you wish, you may go home each night at seven, after Janice has retired. And your duties would not be heavy. We are asking you simply to come into our home as Janice's friend and companion." She caught Peggy's hand impulsively. "Do say you'll come, Miss O'Toole!"

Peggy began to waver. "Give me time until tomorrow to think it over."

"But you've already had so much time to think it over!" Mr. Meredith exclaimed.

"Father," his daughter-in-law cautioned.

He sighed. "Very well — let us know tomorrow."

Peggy felt a little tired as she went down in the elevator. The daily argument was beginning to wear her down.

SOON afterwards, she went out to lunch. As she stood on the corner, waiting to cross the street, a cab drew up a few feet from her. "Taxi, lady?"

She started to shake her head, then caught sight of the driver. It was Jimmie!

"Oh, hello. How are you?"

Her tone was a little cool. She had not seen Jimmie since the evening he had brought her home from the movies and had forced a kiss on her.

"I'm not so well today," he said dolefully, getting out of the cab. "I think I've got a touch of cold shoulder."

"Then you'd better seek a change of climate," Peggy advised, but she couldn't help smiling.

"On your way to lunch?" he asked, and when she nodded. "Good! You're having it with me!"

Peggy started to protest but he took her firmly by the arm, and helped her into his cab. A few minutes later they drew up before the tearoom where Peggy usually ate, and a few minutes after that they were seated opposite each other at a table in a small nook.

When a waitress had taken their order and departed, Peggy rested her cheeks on the palms of her hands and gazed across the table at Jimmie.

"Why weren't you at night school last night?" she asked.

"Aha! So she missed me!" Jimmie grinned. "I had to work. But did you really miss me?"

"Certainly not!"

Jimmie however knew better. He reached across the table and took her hand in his.

"So you aren't mad about the other night?" he said softly.

"The other night?" Peggy repeated. Then she blushed. I didn't think any more about it." She blushed some more.

"Didn't you?" he said. "I had hoped you would."

"However," Peggy added, "boys don't usually kiss me the second time I meet them."

"You don't mean they kiss you the first time! I wanted to, but I didn't think you'd let me."

"I mean they don't do it at any time," Peggy said, with dignity.

"Oh, too bad."

AFTER much Jimmie drove her back to the store. When he had helped her out of the cab, he didn't release her hand.

"I don't have to work tonight," he said.

"Don't you? That's nice!"

"No," he said. "How about you and me?"

"I have another date," Peggy put in.

"Break it! Who's it with?"

"Anna and Bud."

"What do you want to horn in on their dates for?" he demanded severely. "You leave Anna and Bud be — and come along with me!"

"Well, I don't know."

"Good! I'll pick you up at eight." He hopped into his cab. "Okay, duceh?"

Peggy grinned. "Okay, duke!"

Let Good Lighting Help You to Live ... to Entertain

Light conditioned living room can add much to comfort and enjoyment of guests whether playing cards or nibbling tidbits later.

By Carlene Waldo

NOW is the time for all good American housewives to make home a place of greater cheer. Evenings are growing longer, blackness is gathering outside, but indoors the living room lighting can be more cheerful and easier on the eyes than ever before.

The new light conditioning that scientists have designed is intended to help conserve the eyesight, help relax the nerves and lift the spirits psychologically... all very important in times like these.

Softness and smoothness are characteristic of the new lighting which eliminates harsh distracting shadows. Scientifically-designed lamps are placed in good balance through the room; they send some of their light upward and use at least 100 watts each. Every chair where eye work is done is provided with a lamp. And helping to send cheer through the room is a good fixture. It can be either a well-designed new one or a modernized older one.

Lamps Stay Put

In a well-lighted room like this, games may be played at a card table, or refreshments enjoyed, without moving a single lamp out of place. All the activities of the family have been considered in planning the lighting, and father can read in his favorite chair or mother sew in hers with the assurance that eyesight-saving lighting is right at their elbows. The skies may darken outside but the American home can be filled with heart-warming cheer.

U. S. Shooting Zone

Although President Roosevelt's radio address did not definitely mark the limits of America's defense waters, the areas outlined in the map above give the approximate positions regarded as our chief defense zones in the Atlantic. The President declared orders had been given the nation's armed forces to shoot any Axis vessels sighted inside the protective zones and that America would demand freedom of the seas in the Pacific.

READ WANT ADS EVERY DAY

Want to know HOW...?

There's a book of instructions on how to be a dictator, in case anybody WANTS to be an international leper. The book is called "Mein Kampf," and Adolph Hitler is the author.

He says that to be a dictator you have to USE PROPAGANDA, and he tells how to use it. He says the important thing is to block out everything but the CENTRAL IDEA in the minds of the masses. He says it doesn't matter whether the central idea is the truth or a lie—if it's told to us often enough, we (the "Masses") believe it.

Most of us think we're a little too smart for that. But whether we are or not, what puts a crimp in his system, as far as this country is concerned, is that he CAN'T block the truth out of people's minds by screaming lies or half truths.

Hitler has a controlled press—newspapers that spread lies or withhold the truth, just as he tells them. American newspapers don't work that way. Their job is to give the people FACTS, not a dictator's phony "central idea."

American newspapers report what our government is doing, not what some propaganda chief orders them to say. They give us news—facts that make it possible for us to govern ourselves. They give us advertising facts, too, so that we can get the best values for our money.

It wasn't just to fill up space that the founders of this nation guaranteed us a free press in the Bill of Rights. They knew that as long as we have free speech—and a chance to print it—nobody in this country is EVER going to learn to be a dictator.

at all specific as to the fashion in which the task can be accomplished.

It's explained that the correct prescription is to give the nations, great and small, each and all, a 100 per cent fair economic and political shake. But how's it to be managed? Are the "have countries" to be called upon to divide up with the "have not" outfits? Both answers are left to the imagination.

It likewise is insisted that there's got to be disarmament. Ah, but that was tried in the 1920's, and look how it resulted! True, agree the "better worldings," but this time the aggressor powers will have to be disarmed first and so utterly that never again will they be able to peep above a whisper.

What power, though, is going to admit that it's chronically aggressive? No answer's heard to that query, either.

Of course I'm going on the assumption that the democracies are going to lick the totalitarians. Any other theory would be intolerable. Oke, say the democracies win. If so, they win with Russia, and is Russia a democracy?

Quite a few prognosticators suggest that these problems will be pretty puzzling to President Wallace—should he get to BE president.

And, right here at home, aren't we due for an awful period of depression when today's conditions pass? Even if we don't get into the war, the war stuff we're turning out now will have no post-war economic value. It'll be just as useless as if we'd employed it to shoot with. And what about our taxes to pay off the biggest debt in the world's history? Inflation also! Can we dodge it?

Outlook Is Gloom

You don't have to talk with temperamental pessimists to get gloom rejoinders to these questions. Leon Hedgeson's as loyal a New Dealer as they make 'em, and he's lying awake nights, trying to think up methods of heading off a post-war crash and then a spell of hard times such as the last depression wasn't a circumstance to.

Leon does evolve schemes, too, to experiment with.

But will they work when the time comes?

Nobody knows, for they haven't been tried yet, in actual practice. No such schemes ever have worked before, in past history. However, these of Leon's are new ones. He's hopeful, but plenty of critics have their fingers crossed.

So President Wallace, if that comes to pass, may not enjoy his term in the White House.

WHAT'S WHAT AT A GLANCE WASHINGTON - WORLD

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

THAT President Roosevelt seems to have Henry A. Wallace in mind to succeed him at the end of his current term in the White House has been common talk in Washington ever since he forced the latter's vice presidential nomination at the last Democratic national convention.

His recent selection of Henry for the chairmanship of the new American Supply Priorities and Allocation board is regarded as leaving absolutely no doubt about it.

Next to the presidency itself, his position is rated as, at least nominally, the most important in the country. Most of the actual work will be done by Donald M. Nelson, the board's executive director.

However, as chairman, Henry will get most of the limelight, whereas Donald will get all of the bricks. He'll do the practical priority granting and allocating, which will be all right as to concerns that get grants, but certainly will infuriate those that grants are withheld from.

Thus Henry's prestige will be enhanced by the president's designation of him for an exceedingly exalted position and at the same time, Donald will insult him against the violent dislike of disappointed priority and allocation applicants.

If Henry wins the presidency, he may not be, for very long, a bit grateful to F. D. for having wished him into it. A good many prophets are forecasting that the 1944-48 White House term will be something terrible.

In the first place, the war may still be going on, and we may be in it.

In that event, some say they don't believe F. D. will turn his position over to his present understudy. They think he'll consider it an emergency compelling him to accept another four years of his own in the executive mansion.

If War's Over—

But suppose the fighting's just over. On such a hypothesis, it will be up to our first citizen to take the lead in creating the "better post-war world" that we hear so much about. All hands insist on the vital necessity for it, but nobody's

Bulgaria Near Actual War

London and Berlin, was less pessimistic from the Red army viewpoint for the moment at least.

On the southern front, Berlin admitted that the Russians were fighting back strongly on a line from the Poltava sector northward in front of Kharkov and thence to Glukhov, where the armies of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko still were counter-attacking in an effort to rescue Russian troops from the German trap east of Kiev.

It may have been with the idea of stiffening the British-Russian position in the middle east that the inter-Allied conference met in London and endorsed the eight-point peace aims drawn up by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill at their meeting at sea.

The meeting also pledged full co-operation with the United States and Britain in a broad plan to make the world of the future free of fear of aggression and free of economic restrictions. Present at the meeting were representatives of Belgium, Britain, Czechoslovakia, Greece, Luxembourg, Holland, Norway, Poland, Russia, Yugoslavia and Free France.

Ivan Maisky, Soviet ambassador, promised energetic support of the fundamental principles of the Atlantic agreement and said every country must have the right to establish "such social order" as it chooses—an apparent promise to abstain from activities such as have been conducted in the past by the communist international from Moscow.

A 'Science Wonder Chest' Intrigues Kindergarten Tots

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, P.H.D.

While visiting in the kindergarten department at the Normal School of Oswego, N. Y., Miss Marion Sortore, the kindergarten supervisor, called to my attention the "science wonder chest" used with her kindergarten children. What I first saw was a metal box 26 inches long, 14 inches wide, 10 inches high.

It has a padlock with a key kept by Miss Sortore. To have this box is considered by the young child a rare privilege. With but very little instruction, the child learns to examine the contents and enjoy the wonders they reveal.

At once I saw how this box and its contents could be a great treasure chest for the young child in the home, if controlled wisely by the parents, and made available to the child as reward for good achievement or conduct.

I asked Miss Sortore, if I might have a list of the things in the box. I told her I wished to pass it along to my readers. Very willingly she granted me the privilege and handed me a sheet with the following list.

Items in Chest

Compass—to watch the needle move; to have direction brought definitely to mind. Prism—to make rainbow colors. Magnifying glass—as an aid to remove splinters; to make things larger. Mirror—to make faces in for fun. Packet of seeds—to see what our plants grow from. Thermometer—to test water for fish bowl. Magnet—to pick up nails. Candle—a kind of light. Plumb line—to see if our tower of blocks is straight. Counting rod—to familiarize us with numbers. Ruler—to see how things are measured. Hour glass—to time turns in the swing or rides on the truck. Scales—to weigh our blocks. Kaleidoscope—to make strange, balanced, ever-changing ideas out of next to nothing. Top—to show balance. Syringe—to show how it holds water. Alarm clock—to time ourselves. Glass (colored)—to look through to make combination of color. Pedometer—to see how far we can walk. Field glasses—to see things far away. Bell—to listen to. Piece of coal—to see what keeps our homes warm. Piece of cork—to see how light it is and how it floats. Piece of lead—to see how heavy it is. Copper—to see what pennies are made of. Cotton—to see what our clothes are made of. Wool—same as cotton. Coral—to see what grows in the oceans. Level—to see if our blocks are level with the floor. Barometer—to see how weather can be predicted. Sponge—to see how it will hold water and find out where it comes from.

Of course, if you were to give these all to the average child under five or six, without proper supervision and guidance, he soon would destroy them. Then, instead of his getting good education from them he would probably lose good training both in science and citizenship.

I have devised a set of blocks for young children. Any one who wishes to make a set of blocks at home or have one made, may have the measurements of our blocks without cost, by writing us at 235 East 45th Street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three cent stamp. These blocks are suited to the home rather than to the classroom.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Do you have faith in shame and ridicule for making a child try harder to learn at school?
A. None at all.
